All children have a right to a name.

My name is:

All children are important.
I am also important.

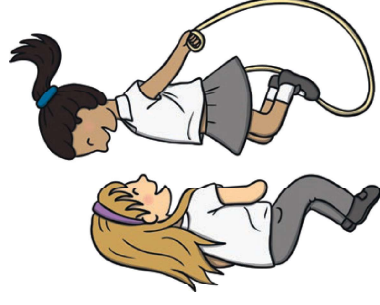

This is me:

A large, empty rectangular box with a thin black border, intended for a child to draw or write about themselves.

Adults and other children need to respect my rights.

All children have all these rights.

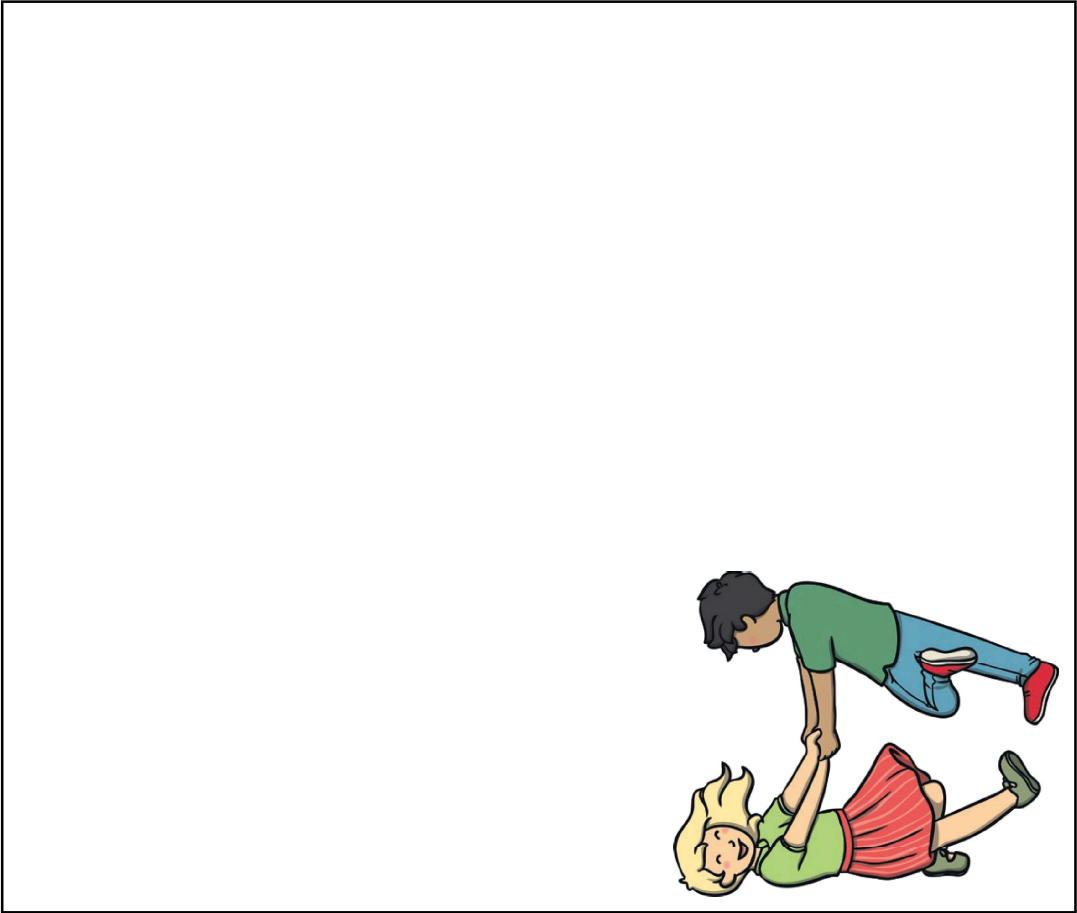

I have all these rights.

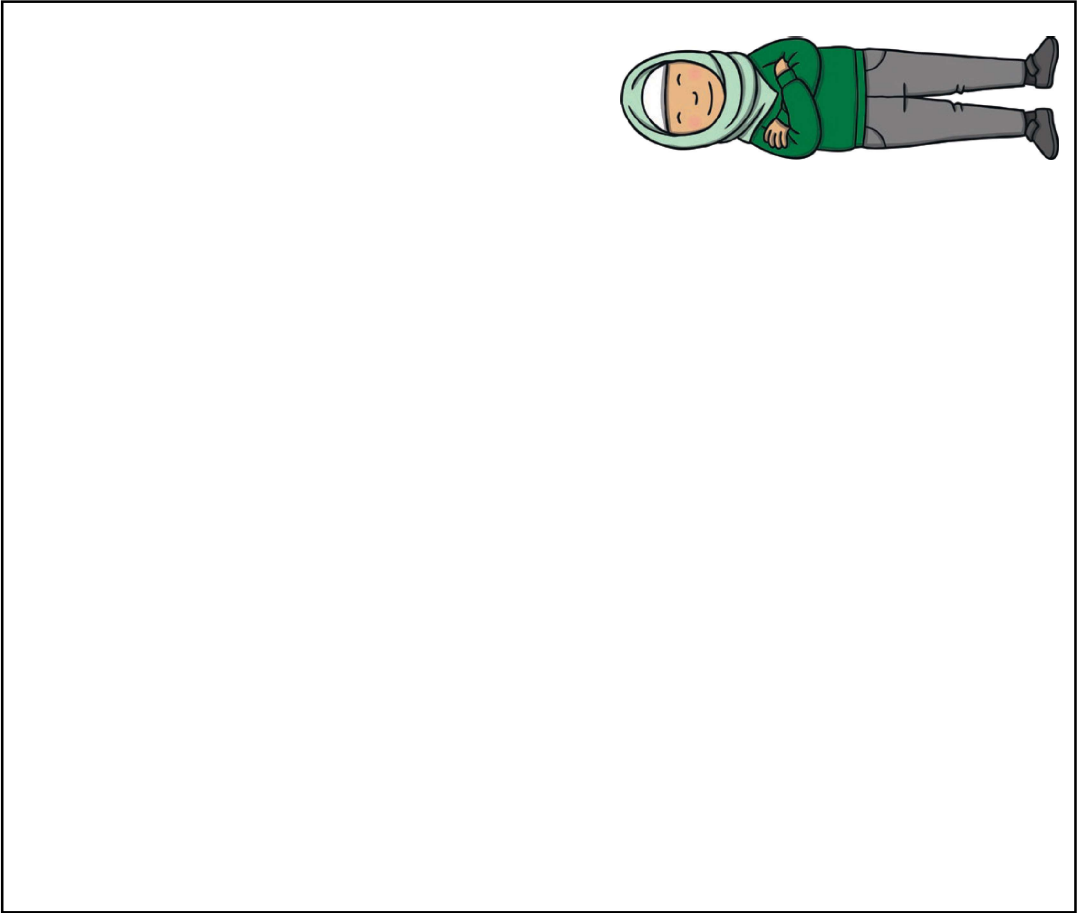

I have the right to be with a family who care for me.

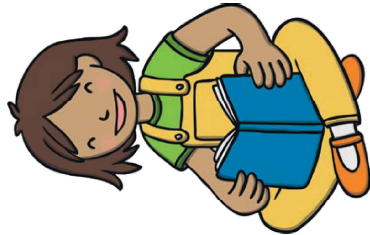

I have the right to a good life.

I have the right to feel safe. Nobody is allowed to hurt me or make fun of me.

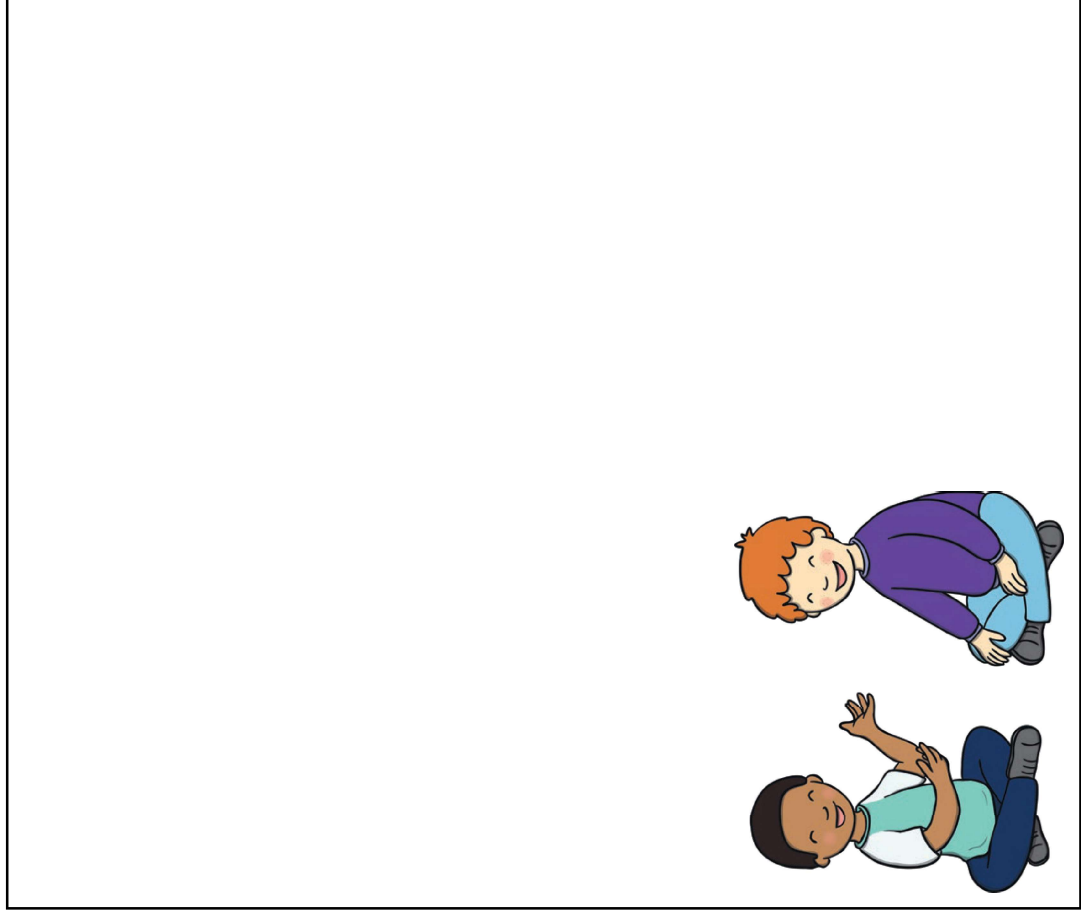

I have the right to learn.

I have the right to get help
when I am not well.

I have the right to tell others about my ideas and be listened to.

I have the right to play.
